

GIRLS WRITE PITTSBURGH

Are you interested in mentoring a young writer? Do you like sharing your time, coaching, and providing positive feedback? Are you a professional in the areas of writing, education, social work or something related? Would you like to make a difference in a teen girl's life? Our first workshop year continues through Summer 2017.

Teen girls participating in Girls Write Pittsburgh are writing poetry, song lyrics, short stories, and novels. These writers are pushing boundaries and taking names. To be the best writers they can be, they need your help.

Becoming a Girls Write Pittsburgh mentor means that you and your teen writer mentee have the unique ability to form a great relationship, a bond of literature and talent that will grow their writing and your lives.

Apply to mentor a young writer today and help her become the next great writer of her generation.

Application for Fall (October) 2016 - Summer (June) 2017
